Dear People of Grace,

I would like to encourage all of you to make worshipping God a part of your re-creation during the summer season. The summer season or season after Pentecost is a season of growth in the Church. As we watch the plants in our gardens and the crops in the farmers' fields grow, so we, too, can be growing in our faith in Jesus Christ.

A part of our growth is gathering for worship on Sundays. Pulling out of your driveway and driving to Grace Church each Sunday is a witness to those in your neighborhood that the worship of God is important to you and that you value your time of worship and praise, even during the summer months.

Each Sunday you attend worship is also an encouragement to those seated around you in the pews. It is a reminder that we are not "Lone Ranger" Christians. Rather, we have all been baptized into the one Body of Christ, and the Scripture says we are members of one another. Therefore, when one of us suffers, we all suffer together. When one of us is honored, we are all honored together. We work and play and live in this community of faith called Grace Church.

Also, probably anywhere you travel this summer will have an Episcopal church, or an Anglican church, as our churches are called in most places outside of the United States. Wherever you are, it is fun to visit an Episcopal or Anglican church which uses a book of common prayer the same as or similar to the one we use. It is a reminder that the family of God in Christ Jesus is everywhere. Almost anywhere we travel in the world, we will have our Episcopal or Anglican family with which to celebrate the Gospel and worship our Lord when we get there.

Because you are so familiar with our liturgy, you will understand what is going on even if the prayer book is in a different language. In fact, because you know how the prayers go, often you can translate the words because of your familiarity with the prayers in English.

"We work and play and live in this community of faith called Grace Church."

When you visit other Episcopal parishes in the U.S., you may also see something they are doing that you can bring back to Grace. For example, the words in our Sunday bulletin inviting all who seek God and who are drawn to Christ to receive holy communion were taken from Grace Cathedral in San Francisco. You may read in another church's bulletin about a ministry and bring that idea back to Grace with you, as well.

You come to worship because you experience God there. Experiencing God in worship is a blessing. So, remember the blessing of worshipping our wonderful Lord as you make your plans for the summer.

Grace and Peace,

Fr. Gary Coffey

Grace Outreach

Free Meals for Kids This Summer — No Questions Asked! Summer meals are available for ALL children, ages 2-18, every weekday, June 15-August 7.

While our Backpacker program takes a summer hiatus, the non-profit organization Congregations for Children is partnering with the Buncombe County School system to provide nutritious summer meals for children (from city schools or county schools, even visiting friends or relatives) free of charge.

Over half the children in Buncombe county schools receive free or reduced-cost meals during the school year. You have to wonder what those same kids would do without this program when school is out for the summer. In its first summer, the Summer Food Distribution Project provided 53,000 meals. Last summer, the total rose to 84,000.

This summer, there are a total of nine distribution sites, including two in the northern part of the county near where many of us live. Volunteers and site supervisors (supervisor training provided) are still needed to help with distribution, so please consider giving a little time to this rewarding and much-needed project. Scheduling is very flexible.

Information about volunteering and site locations is available by contacting Karen Ballard, 828-665-7501 or rkbball@ballesouth.net.

And if you know of children who might be hungry this summer, please let them know about this program.

Habitat House is Coming in 2015. As most of you know, Grace Episcopal Church is an active supporter of Habitat for Humanity. In addition to our annual financial support, we partner with Habitat and the other Episcopal churches in our area to build an “Episcopal House” every two years.

2015 is our year to build another house! Construction will begin in late August and will continue for three months. Grace is responsible for providing workers for ten days during the build. Please pray about ways in which you can help with this ministry. If any of you would like to help organize and/or recruit Grace volunteers, please contact Sue at 230-9328. You will have lots of opportunities in the next few months to volunteer your help to build the actual house. Let's make this project a success as we provide a needy family with a home of their own!

Broughton Luncheon is July 23

We will once again provide lunch for residents from Broughton House on Thursday, July 23. Margaret Dahm will plan and cook for the event, but she needs volunteers to set tables, serve, ice cakes, mash potatoes, and call the Bingo game. Please let her know if you can help. Her phone number is 254-2772, or you can email her at margaretdahm@yahoo.com.

We are also collecting bingo prizes. Please leave prizes in the office or in the basket in the foyer. Please do not donate jewelry or items with sharp points. Thank you for your support of this ministry.

Elly Withers Assigned to Panama

Elly Withers, long time Grace parishioner, will be volunteering in Panama with the Young Adult Service Corps (YASC) through the Episcopal Church starting in August. YASC is a one-year program that sends young adults all across the world to serve God. This year, there are thirty-three young adults participating in the program headed for places like Japan, Brazil, and even Rome to work with Austin Rios, our former associate priest.

Elly will be in Panama with the nonprofit Promesa, which is run by Panamanians of the Episcopal Church outside of the capital. She will work on various environmental projects, including sustainable agriculture with indigenous communities in the territories of Bayano and Madungandi.

The motto of Promesa is “to promote food sovereignty, care for the environment, and promote social justice in farm working.” Elly is excited about dedicating her life to service through this organization, especially since it is directly related to her undergraduate studies. She just graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill with a degree in Spanish and Global Studies (with a focus in Environment).

YASC functions under the notion that volunteers are not serving abroad as individuals, but as missionaries sent from their communities. The church community is integrally connected to their service abroad. In order to take advantage of this opportunity, Elly is required to raise $10,000, which will cover her expenses for the year. She plans on keeping a blog, detailing progress in projects; she also plans on giving a presentation upon returning in the fall of 2016. She looks forward to representing Grace in Panama and connecting the church to her service abroad!

Thank You, Beth!

Beth Stahl, who has been our Director of Music here at Grace, is retiring after nineteen years of kind, creative, and dedicated service. In the early years, Beth directed all of our choirs. After a number of years directing the Children's Choir, Beth shifted all of her efforts to the 11:15 service, focusing on both the Adult and the Handbell Choirs.

Due to various and sundry changes in her choir people's lives and their travel schedules, Beth sometimes had a half dozen people in the Adult Choir and at other times had twenty-five or thirty. She masterfully and cheerfully adjusted the music accordingly, often from week to week, and was able to assist each person in producing his or her best vocal musical effort. Well done, Beth!

Where the Handbell Choir is concerned, Beth encouraged the veteran players to achieve more and more, increasing their musical repertoire and their handbell skills. At the same time, she shepherded the newcomers and brought them on board in a way that made them feel a part from the beginning and then eventually developed skillful ringers out of all whom God sent her way.

Beth, we thank you for your tireless efforts, your dedication, and for the beautiful music you and your choirs have offered to the glory of God here at Grace Church over the last nineteen years. Well done, good and faithful servant! We thank God for you and ask God's richest blessings upon you and your family. We will keep you in our prayers during this time of transition to whatever musical ministry God has for you in the future. We love you!

Total Expenses:	141,833	148,358	(6,525)
Income Less Expenses:	(8,486)	(0)	(8,486)

Pledge receipts through April totaled $108,330 compared to budgeted pledges of $117,311. Considering all income sources, income for the first four months totaled $133,347, while we had projected income to be $148,357; resulting in a negative variance in income of ($15,010).

The negative income variance for the first four months was offset by expenses in the first four months which were less than budgeted amounts by $6,525. When added to the negative income variance of ($15,010), year-to-date income less expenses resulted in an overall deficit of ($8,486) for our first four months.

We are currently experiencing a deficit of $8,486 while at this point in 2014 we experienced a negative balance of $7,501.

Your vestry continues to be hopeful that all needs will be met.

Walking with God through Pain and Suffering

A book review by Catherine Godfrey

In Part 1 (of 3 parts), Timothy Keller gives a decent chronology and review of philosophical and religious thought from ancient times to the present, particularly as each belief system addresses death, pain, and suffering. He calls them the "Cultures of Suffering." Keller argues that even though non-Western cultures help their people to be "edified by misery," Christianity offers the most comforting and satisfactory explanation: that there is an all-loving God; that there is a desirable afterlife; and that God allows pain and suffering in order to draw us closer to Him.

Atheists celebrate the fact that they do not have to struggle with 'if God, why suffering?' To the atheist, it is "no God...no struggle." They say: "Forget God; just work to make the world a better place." But, historically, that attitude has not been satisfactory.

As Keller points out, both research and experience tell us that a majority of people reach for the spiritual to help them interpret and bear up under horrendous suffering. Viktor Frankl, a Jewish psychiatrist who survived three years in the Nazi death camps, observed how some of his fellow prisoners were able to endure the horror and pass through it while others could not. The difference came down to what Frankl called meaning. The problem is that contemporary people think life is all about finding happiness. But when suffering comes along, it takes the conditions for happiness away, and so suffering destroys all your reason to keep living. Frankl noted how often secular or nominally religious people turned to faith once they entered the horror of those places. Frankl argued that this increased faith was not only natural, but it was one of the only ways to go on in an environment that stripped you of all earthly sources of significance, security, and purpose.

Throughout Keller's book, the connection between belief in God and the benefit of disaster is demonstrated through personal testimonies. For example, one family was living the easy life when disaster struck. The wife's reaction? Gratitude...because it reminded her to look to God for consolation and support.

Next, Keller addresses the "problem of evil." Keller points out that, "up until the 1980s, the argument against God from evil was considered among academic philosophers to be conclusive, a proof that the traditional God of the Bible could not exist." However, many Christian thinkers have put forth theodicies, the defense of God's goodness and omnipotence in view of the existence of evil. The word theodicy was coined by philosopher Gottfried Leibniz, meaning literally a justification of God's ways to human beings. One of the first theodicies had to do with "soul-making," in that "the evils of life can be justified if we recognize that the world was primarily created to be a place where people find God and grow spiritually into all they were designed to be."

In contrast, several non-Christian philosophers attempted to disprove the existence of God, using logic and reasoning...that if evil exists, an all-knowing, all-loving God cannot. These counter-arguments eventually ran out of steam because of one point: no matter how smart, logical, or rational we are, we cannot know the mind of God. Job learned that. Just because we see no purpose for evil, particularly natural evil (earthquakes, tsunamis, diseases, etc.), does not mean God has no use for evil.

Keller's book is approachable, well-researched, and thorough. In Part 2, we (and Keller) leave the other belief systems behind and deal with some of the thornier issues Christianity is up against, including God's purpose and use for suffering.
